Joshua Liner Gallery is pleased to present the 2011 Summer Group Exhibition showcasing 17 artists, including established gallery regulars and newcomers to the gallery. The exhibition will feature painting, collage, and drawing, with works by the following artists:

Chloe Early	Evelyn Rydz	Pema Rinzin	Tiffany Bozic
Damon Soule	Greg Lamarche	Ryan McLennan	Tomokazu Matsuyama
Dave Kinsey	Herbert Baglione	Shawn Barber	Tony Curanaj
David Ellis

Offering a preview for the fall 2011 and 2012 programs, the Summer Group Exhibition will present work by a number of artists who will return for solo shows over the coming months. Painter Tomokazu Matsuyama, whose colorful, contemporary takes on Japanese mythology and classical motifs will kick off the fall 2011 season in a solo exhibition at the gallery. Chloe Early, who creates expressionistic paintings of urban noir, will follow in October in her first solo New York showing. She is joined by Ryan McLennan's allegorical nature paintings, in his second solo exhibition at the gallery. David Ellis—his last showing with the gallery at the New York 2011 fair won the PULSE Prize—will close out the year with a special solo presentation of new works.

The new year will inaugurate the Joshua Liner Gallery Annual, a new program of exhibitions curated by gallery artists beginning with Tony Curanaj. The Summer Group Exhibition will present Curanaj's highly detailed still lifes that present contemporary themes within the context of traditional realism. Curanaj will go on to have his debut solo exhibition with the gallery in Autumn 2012.

Other 2012 exhibitors on view in the Summer Group Exhibition include Evan Hecox with his documentary-style renderings of exotic locales in gouache, new works in oil by figurative painter Shawn Barber, collage, painting, and installation by Greg Lamarche - who will make his solo debut with the gallery in Autumn 2012, followed by acrylic on maple panel paintings by nature fantasist Tiffany Bozic. The 2012 season will finish with the mixed media on canvas paintings of Dave Kinsey, his second solo show with the gallery.

The 2011 Summer Group Exhibition will also feature works in painting by gallery artists Pema Rinzin, Damon Soule, and Oliver Vernon, along with several gallery newcomers—the whimsically macabre muralist Herbert Baglione, legendary graffiti artist and Venice Biennale alum Stephen Powers, the bewitching drawings of environmental detritus on drafting film by Evelyn Rydz, and the paintings and photo-collages by Los Angeles based painter Cameron Gray.
